There is a little yellow duck to look for on every double page with pictures. Can you find it?

Stephen Cartwright's little yellow duck made his first-ever appearance in The First Thousand Words over thirty years ago. Duck has since featured in over 125 titles, in more than 70 languages, and has delighted millions of readers, both young and old, around the world.

About this book

The First Thousand Words in Italian is an enormously popular book that has helped many thousands of children and adults learn new words and improve their Italian language skills.

You'll find it easy to learn words by looking at the small labeled pictures. Then you can practice the words by talking about the large central pictures. You can also listen to the words on the Usborne Quicklinks website (see below).

There is an alphabetical word list at the back of the book, which you can use to look up words in the picture pages.

Remember, this is a book of a thousand words. It will take time to learn them all.

Masculine and feminine words

When you look at Italian words for things such as "chair" or "man," you will see that they have il, lo, la or l' in front of them. This is because all Italian words for people and things are either masculine or feminine. Il or lo are the words for "the" in front of a masculine word, la is "the" in front of a feminine word, and you use l' in front of words that begin with "a," "e," "i," "o" or "u." For plurals (more than one, as in "chair" or "men"), the Italian word for "the" is i or gli for masculine words, and le for feminine words.

All the labels in this book show words for things with il, lo, la, i, gli or le. Always learn them with this little word.

Looking at Italian words

A few Italian words have an accent on the last letter of the word. This is a sign written over the letter, and means that the last part of the word is stressed when it is spoken.

How to say the Italian words

The best way to learn how to pronounce Italian words is to listen to a native Italian speaker. You can hear the words in this book, read by a native speaker, on the Usborne Quicklinks website. Just go to www.usborne.com/quicklinks and enter the keywords 1000 italian. There you can also find links to other useful websites about Italy and the Italian language.

Word list

In this list, you can find all the Italian words in this book in alphabetical order. Next to each one, you can see its pronunciation (how to say it) in italics (like this), and then its English translation.

Remember that Italian nouns (words for things) are either masculine or feminine (see page 3). In the list, each one has il, lo, la, l', i, gli or le in front of it. These all mean "the." The words with il or lo are masculine, those with la are feminine. Italian nouns that begin with "a," "e," "i," "o" or "u" have l' in front of them. After the word you will see (m) or (f) to show whether it is masculine or feminine.

Plural nouns (a noun is a plural if you are talking about more than one, for example "cats") have i or gli in front if they are masculine, or le if they are feminine.

About Italian pronunciation
Read the pronunciation as if it were an English word, but try to remember the following points about how Italian words are said:

All the letters in an Italian word are sounded, except h. Double letters, like ll or nn, sound a little longer than usual.

c before e or i is pronounced ch;
ch before e or i is pronounced k;
gh before e or i is pronounced g as in get;
sc before e or i is pronounced sh;
z is pronounced ts.

Most Italian words have a part that you stress, or say louder (like the "day" part of the English word "today"). The part of the word that you should stress is shown in bold italics (like this) in the pronunciation guide.

In the guide, ay is like the a in "date;"
o is always like the o in "hot;"
ow is always like the ow in "cow;"
g is always like the g in "get;"
ly is like the lli in "million;"
ny is like the ni in "onion;"
ye is always like the ye in "yet."
